Innovative Messaging

A person, most likely an Alliance activist, has been stamping "It's Great to be White" along with the image of our Life Rune and our natall.com Web address on Federal Reserve Notes in red ink. This is not the first time this has been done and we hope his novel activism will encourage others to do the same. Money with this message is passed hand to hand, person to person, over and over, unlike our business cards or fliers, and demands attention and interest among those who handle the bills. Some who see these bills will type natall.com into their search engines and get an eyeful of the truths they have needed, but had previously been denied.

Other groups have also been stamping paper money for years with political messages without being prosecuted for "defacing" the bills. President Trump's supporters, for example, have been stamping "Donald Trump Lives Here" next to the image of the White House on tens of thousands of $20 bills, and one can even purchase the stamp for doing so on Amazon.com for $16.95. The Soros-funded MoveOn.org group supports another Jewish group, Stamp Stampede, run by the Jews who own Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, encouraging MoveOn followers to participate in the campaign to stamp two million bills with the phrase "Stamp Money Out of Politics." That's not a bad message, but coming from Soros, who donates billions to every anti-White cause and to every politician who will support anti-White legislation, it is the height of hypocrisy.

Alliance activists are encouraged to try this, if so inclined, but also to be careful doing so. I once stamped every bill in my wallet years ago, and then, while snowed in under 30 inches of the white stuff for 11 days at my mountain cabin, had to walk to the market a couple of miles away and pass several of these small denomination bills, each having the Alliance's prominent message stamped on them, while trying to keep a straight face.

Volunteers Needed for Social Media and Initial Contact

The National Office is looking for a very dependable member with decent computer user skills, a reliable Internet connection, and a consistent five to ten hours available every week to help our media department post National Vanguard articles on official National Alliance social media accounts, and promote the Alliance by interacting in a friendly, professional manner with other platform users.

We're also looking for a loyal, dependable Net-connected member with excellent writing and interpersonal skills to help our secretary and audio book producer Vanessa Neubauer handle correspondence with members and potential members, which would probably also consume five or somewhat more than five hours of time every week. It's possible that the two volunteer positions could be filled by the same talented person.

If you're interested in helping, send a note to Miss Neubauer at correspondence@nationalalliance.cc with your telephone number and a note telling us your membership number and the best time to call.

Cosmotheist Books

Members are encouraged to purchase material from our online bookstore with credit cards now that we have activated a new way for customers to do so after being repeatedly "de-platformed" by credit card processing services — services likely pressured by Jewish groups like the Southern Poverty Law Center or the Anti-Defamation League. We desperately need the revenue stream from sales of books and CDs online that has been denied us by the Jew and his collaborators for the past 18 months.

In an interview with the Wall Street Journal, PayPal CEO Dan Schulman talked about what determines which users get banned from his platform. Schulman admitted that his staff rely on the disreputable Southern Poverty Law Center's opinion when it comes to who to remove! Schulman then claimed that PayPal "still believes in freedom of speech," even though they censor based on political ideology. You may find, Jewboy, that those on whose liberties you trample may someday trample on yours, and more.

Correspondence

Chairman Williams, please find enclosed two money orders totaling $152. $140 is for my dues this year through July and the $12 is an extra donation. I apologize for being behind with my pledge — my wife and I had our fifth child in August and day care costs are astronomical. I was very pleased to learn about the Alliance's progress in Tennessee. Keep up the good work! — S.E., New Jersey

DAN SCHULMAN

Dear NA: My normal monthly dues are enclosed as well as $200 for the National Office to use as you choose. I want to take this opportunity to introduce you to a National Socialist movement that has been active lately as well as to get your thoughts on them: the New Awakening group in the Pacific Northwest. I have corresponded recently online with some of this movement's members and have been wondering if the NA could get in touch with them and work together with that group in some capacity? One member tells me, "I'm certain that NA's leadership is familiar with Pastor Butler and I'm certain they know who Harold Covington was."... — S.E., New Hampshire

Chairman Williams responds: Thank you for your generous support, S.E., and for your question. The National Alliance was certainly aware of Pastor Richard Butler's Church of Jesus Christ Christian and of its prisoner outreach, Aryan Nations. The Alliance was also quite aware of Mr. Covington who copied Pastor Butler's Northwest Migration plan after Butler died, renaming it the Northwest Front. It is not unexpected that other groups would pick up on those men's migration ideas after Covington died last year. We have no direct knowledge of New Awakening. Though there may be a very few exceptional individuals among such groups who we might want to recruit, generally the Alliance is not interested in working with non-Alliance groups. Some of these groups are virtual freak shows, like the so-called National Socialist Movement (NSM), touted by our enemies as the largest "neo-Nazi" group in America — and which has recently been turned over to a Negro huckster who easily conned the group's leader into giving him control. (See "The Secessionist State of Franklin — Can it Happen Again?" on whitebiocentrism.com.) Some of the racial-nationalist ideas embodied in Germany's National Socialism between about 1920 through 1945 are in accord with the 21st century ideology of the National Alliance but most of the "neo-Nazi" groups in America these days are cult-like caricatures of the Third Reich and play into our enemies' hands. We hate to see them go under because they serve a purpose by drawing away kooks that are not suitable to become Alliance members. Dr. Pierce said repeatedly that we do not want to unite with these groups or to recruit our members from them, telling us: "We want virgins, normal people who would never join these marginal groups." Fortunately, as a new member in New England, you'll meet other more experienced members in your area at their March gathering who can guide you in the Alliance's work and away from these Internet "neo-Nazi" groups.

Dear Chairman Williams, As it stands now I will be in the hospital Wednesday [27 February] to have my cancerous right kidney removed. The full body PET scan shows no signs that the cancer has spread to anywhere else [Positron Emission Tomography (PET) scan is an imaging test that helps reveal how one's tissues and organs are functioning.]. Of course there is always risk of danger in such an operation and of infection, etc. Be informed, just in case, that that I have written my Last Will and Testament and included the National Alliance as a beneficiary. My long time neighbor, [name deleted], of this address [deleted] will be holding the original will, written in long-hand on the same type paper as this letter to you. It will be a good idea for you to hold on to this letter as it supports the existence and validity of the will that is in her hands. Take care. Sincerely yours, — O.C., Louisiana

Chairman Williams responds: Having talked to you after receiving this alarming letter I'm happy to report to our membership that you are back home, lucid, and resting, just four days after having your kidney removed, and say the operation appears to have been a success. We wish you a speedy recovery, O.C. Your thoughtful act of including the Alliance in your will can help to insure our organization's continued existence in the future. Other members are encouraged to do the same. I added a codicil to my own will in 2015 that the thousands of books I purchased over the years, including the collections of Dr. Pierce and other leaders in this cause of ours, will be owned by the National Alliance after my own death. In 2015 we did not even know if the Alliance would still exist in 2019, but here we are after overcoming numerous challenges and obstacles. We still struggle for lack of funds but are confident that will eventually change, thanks to good folks like you who help us to succeed.

Greetings Chairman Williams. I received Serpents Walk, the "They Hate Us" flier and the 10/18 BULLETIN today, my birthday. Thanks! $20 is enclosed for 100 NA business cards, some more of those fliers and, if you will, all BULLETINs from October 2016 to the present. I have saved all BULLETINs from from 2002 to 10/16 when I dropped away without explanation for, let's say, financial and health issues. I've been reading the 1993 Membership Handbook and listening to the Dr. Pierce's inspiring "Our Cause" that have brought me back to Alliance ideology and goals. I have 50 of Dr. Pierce's American Dissident Voices shows on cassette tapes. If many of them are available on CDs, please send me a list. I will rejoin the Alliance and get back to recruiting other members again as soon as some personal issues are settled. All the best, — K.O., Michigan

Chairman Williams responds: It is good to hear from you again and that you'll be rejoining the Alliance. It is apparent that you are not online or you could be keeping up with us. I still have some of those old cassette tapes from the 1990s myself but nothing to play them on. I'll catch you up with the BULLETINs you missed, but we no longer stock bulk fliers. You'll have to get online to download and print our authorized fliers at natall.com/fliers and you'll find CDs of the best of Dr. Pierce's talks at cosmotheistchurch.org. Welcome to the 21st century, K.O!

Chairman Williams, this evening fellow member J.C. called to bring me up to date on what's going on with him. Besides having a very busy work schedule, his wife just had a baby this past month, and he's moved to a smaller town. He asked me to let you know he understands he's behind on his dues and will catch up with you on that shortly... He's encouraged by NA's progress and sincere about needing to get his affairs in order after the chaos of moving and a new addition to his family. He looks forward to being more active again with Alliance activities.

Several hundred fliers have been distributed this month despite the record-setting winter conditions that have hindered such. But out they go anyway. The media have been conspicuously silent about our activities these past two months even though word has to be getting back to them as to fliers being distributed. It's my belief that they're "damned if they do, and damned if they don't" report on us for fear of amplifying our message, while also fearing the loss of their influence on the minds of Whites if our message goes unchallenged. An excellent situation for us to be in! Either way, our influence expands. I still advertise Cosmotheist-oriented and other publications which are useful in raising White consciousness online. Lately these posts have been under attack, never mind the hate email I receive now and then.

Regarding my legal situation, early this month the attorney for the state submitted his appellate brief. They're arguing that because the statute that defined "school" was expansive (basically it said a school is a school), that meant the state could define stadium parking lots blocks from any school as "school grounds" simply because the legislature, when writing the laws, meant they could construe it that way. My attorney has told me that she's considering another brief in rebuttal, but that it must be submitted early in March. After that, the appellate judges will hear oral arguments and make their decision. Whatever the outcome, my name will be used as the basis of new case law in Iowa.

I'm glad to learn you're no longer in detention and that you plan to appeal your wrongful conviction. Best regards to you, Svetlana, and all our staff. — Jim Mathias, Iowa

Commentary by Chairman William White Williams

Four Steps Forward, Only One Back

February, though the shortest month, has arguably been the most stressful for me as I prepare this BULLETIN, the 50th in as many months since being appointed National Alliance Chairman back in late 2014. I apologize to members and supporters for its being so late this month.

The month began optimistically as two members, one in Colorado, the other in New England, visited our National Office in Tennessee during the first two weekends, and returned home, vowing to move here as soon as they can to bolster our overworked staff. To me, that is the best development for our Alliance in a while. A couple of other members have expressed interest in moving here to work for the Alliance in the past month also. The challenge, but not a big problem, is how will we pay them and where they will stay.

On the other hand, more legal issues than usual to deal with have arisen which I won't go into at any length now, but which require money that we do not have for pursuing them adequately. Two anonymous complaints were filed against me via the Internet. They must be dealt with, on site, by Tennessee state inspectors.

One is a bogus complaint made to the Tennessee State Fire Marshal's office claiming that we are building a "350-seat meeting hall" on our newly acquired property without proper permits. I have already met on the Alliance's new property with two Fire Marshals from the Knoxville Office who are satisfied that the filing is bogus, but it is their policy to investigate all complaints, whether anonymous or not.

The other false submission was to the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation (TDEC), alleging that I've been "clearing too much land" for our road into the Alliance's new site without the necessary permit. An appointment has been made with the TDEC official to come inspect our site work. I'm not worried about this fake complaint any more than the other one, but TDEC has the same policy as the Fire Marshal of investigating all complaints, whether made anonymously or not. I have a very good idea who filed both of these complaints. Guess who? A certain fugitive "battery victim's" dirty fingerprints are all over this harassment. So much for being able to face one's accuser.

Books Needed

The projects our Alliance undertakes require teamwork. I was disappointed that no member responded to my hint in the January BULLETIN to purchase for us earlier editions of the popular university political science textbook, Ideals and Ideologies; A Reader, wherein its author, Professor Emeritus Dr. Terence Ball, has obviously violated our copyrights. My request was not made clearly enough. We have evidence that our copyrighted material was illegally reproduced (at least in the ninth and tenth editions), but it was probably also breached in earlier editions. Ball's book terribly misrepresents the ideology of Dr. Pierce. It is even possible that the next edition will continue this disgraceful practice. Members who can provide us with copies of these previous editions of Ideals (or of the eleventh edition when it comes out) please coordinate with the National Office to avoid duplication of purchases. The New York publisher of this textbook and its author have been duly notified of their unauthorized use of our material, which is the first step in seeking relief from them. It should be a simple matter for Alliance team members to purchase these textbooks on Amazon.com, and have them mailed to our Tennessee offices so we can build our legal case for flagrant copyright infringement.

Legal Update

My wife Lana and I were confident when we travelled to West Virginia for my long-delayed sentencing on 12 February in the fraudulent three and one-half year misdemeanor battery case brought against me by the Alliance's enemies, that the court would finally see that I had been wrongfully convicted. As reported in earlier BULLETINs the alleged "victim" had fled the state shortly after I'd made clear in court at my 10 October sentencing that I would question her directly in court about the factual inaccuracies in her victim impact statement. We had prepared and filed three pre-sentencing motions, based on time-honored defendant's rights, citing violations of West Virginia Criminal Law and the Judicial Code of Conduct.

The fix was in, however. All three motions were denied by the same judge, Jennifer Dent, who, oddly enough, was my co-defendant when sued in the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals by the alleged victim, Garland Corse, who lost that case.

I will appeal Judge Dent's guilty verdict to the same West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, representing myself, on five grounds that I've been told by outside attorneys are all compelling. I will also file a complaint with the state's Judicial Investigation Commission based on procedural errors. Had she granted my motion for a new trial, Dent would not be facing charges of judicial misconduct: There would be no victim, no victim's witnesses, nor any evidence. My motion to unseal over 100 pages of illegal, private ex parte communications to the judge by the alleged victim, for my use in a new trial, and my motion to question at a special hearing the bizarre, rambling victim impact statement by the now fugitive Corse were denied. In fact Dent wanted to strike the victim impact statement altogether, as if it never existed.

On appeal to the state Supreme Court of Appeals I will be allowed to use Corse's ex parte communications as well as her victim impact statement, both of which make similar unsubstantiated claims that I am a "serial murderer"; that I've "hired multiple hit men" to kill others for me; that I am a rapist, a kidnapper, an arsonist, an embezzler, a gang leader, and am mentally ill — in addition to her claims that I am not National Alliance Chairman and that she and her co-conspirators are actually in charge of the Alliance. That last claim has been resolved by dismissal of the three civil lawsuits that she and her coup-plotters brought against me and the Alliance.

Judge Dent wasn't interested in hearing about the state's claiming witness's motive for telling her that I am a violent monster — no matter that the Probation Officer who interviewed me stated in his court-ordered sentence recommendation that I, at 71, served honorably as a military officer, am in a long-term stable marriage, have no criminal record whatsoever, and am a person of good character. As I said, the fix was in.

That aside, I was sentenced to six months incarceration and remanded to the Maximum Security Regional Jail for twenty days on 12 February, less the two days that I had already spent in that facility in December of 2015. The remainder of the six-month sentence is suspended. That would not have been so bad except the facility was locked down, under quarantine for a flu epidemic, the day after I went in. I became horribly sick, with all flu symptoms, lying on my cell's concrete floor for over a week and losing ten pounds — and another two pounds after returning to Tennessee. I am still not fully recovered as I write this commentary. After not eating at all for nearly three days I was informed by the guards that if I didn't eat I'd be force-fed. The next day I told them to force-feed me, but they said, "We can't do that." A big bluff. I had no appetite, but at least the slop they called food was not fit for a dog and therefore easy to reject.

Now, because I refused to "accept responsibility" for the alleged battery that never happened, comes the control of the "Nazi" leader that the court sought all along. If I write anything about the "victim" on the Internet during the next 18-month probationary period, for example, I must serve out the full six-month sentence. I must take court-ordered Anger Management classes and submit to alcohol and drug testing. I definitely have some anger, mostly traceable to being railroaded in this backwater kangaroo court, but I neither drink alcohol nor do drugs so they won't trap me on that. Should I somehow decide to have a beer and am caught having that beer, I must serve out the full six-month sentence. It is good that my accuser has fled the state of West Virginia and is in hiding now, because should she successfully claim I have broken any law in West Virginia or in any other state, I would have to serve out the six-month sentence. It's very unlikely she would be able to do that in an anonymous Internet claim, since that doesn't constitute evidence.

National Alliance Policy Clarified

It is unfortunate that we have been unable to issue a new, revised and updated National Alliance Membership Handbook, but that is not a pressing priority until we have enough members to justify its publication. Our next book to be printed is the new third edition of The Turner Diaries, which is nearly ready. We still have nearly 400 copies of the second edition that we ordered last year.

Under Chapter 4, "General Activities" in the 1993 edition of the Handbook is section 4.a.iii, "Activities Requiring National Office Approval." Every member should understand that there are certain activities in which he should not engage. Without his Handbook in hand, however, a member cannot know what activities can and cannot be done. One activity not allowed under 4.a.iii is the dissemination of any propaganda material prepared outside the National Office. "The preparation of all propaganda prototypes — leaflets, recorded telephone messages, stickers, etc. — is ordinarily done in the National Office. Occasionally a member may have an idea for a new propaganda item or for a modification of an existing item. He should submit his idea, along with any art or other material, to the National Office for approval, but he should not distribute any such material to the public without approval." That policy was written by Dr. Pierce 26 years ago, before the Internet became available to us. The reasons for this policy include our professional standards, our carefully considered quality maintenance, and other reasons. I mention this policy now because one of our more motivated, industrious self-starting members has been sending packets of material to those he considers "high percentage NA prospects" whose addresses he obtains — some is approved material printed natall.com/fliers. Some other material he has included in these packets, however, was not from us but he had put "National Alliance, Box 4, Mountain City, TN" on this material not approved by the National Office and which might project the wrong image of the National Alliance. I learned of this because he had put that same address on the packets as a return address and some were "returned to sender" for one reason or another. I've talked to him about this and from now on he will only distribute propaganda that has been approved by the National Office.

Our gray-haired Chairman, back in Tennessee, is shaken but not shattered; embattled but undefeated.

We need many more members recruited, and much more funding available to us, so we can publish an updated and revised Membership Handbook for the 21st century National Alliance. W. W. W.
